To that extent, the parties shall focus their attention on conversations on the children rather than each other and encourage the children to understand that differences occur and attempt to adapt to those differences without suggesting that the other parent is better or worse. The parties shall respect the other parent's right to establish an independent life with the children.

1. 80. Maintaining Contact When Children are With the Other

Parent: Each parent shall permit and encourage uncensored communications with the minor children at reasonable hours and for a reasonable duration.

5. xi. Both parties shall refrain from involving the children in "divorce issues." Such issues include, but are not limited to, parent time disagreements; discussions about child support or financial hardships brought about by divorce; differences of opinion on how money is spent; discussions about court and legal matters; contents of legal papers; seeking information regarding what occurs in one another's homes (other than general conversation);
