MEMORANDUM

TO: Forms Committee

FROM: Nathanael Player

RE: Sexual Violence Protective Orders

More thoughtful consideration is warranted regarding recent changes to the Sexual Violence Protective Order forms. The Committee voted electronically to remove the requirement in the request and findings/order that the person receiving protection be at least 18 years old; the revised forms now say that the petitioner seeks protection for themselves. This change was recommended by the Legal Aid Society after a review of the relevant statutes. Since then, Amy Hernandez, the domestic violence program coordinator for the courts, provided me with a memo from general counsel's office that suggests this change was incorrect. I recommend that the Sexual Violence Protective Order forms be changed to mirror the language in the statute to avoid having this body make an unnecessary legal interpretation (see attached). I also recommend that the Family Law Subcommittee be tasked with considering revisions to the child protective orders to make clear that a minor can seek a protective order for themselves.

The relevant text of general counsel's memo is below:

An individual alleging to be the victim of a crime of sexual violence under Utah Code 78B-7-503, may seek a sexual violence protective order so long as they are neither a cohabitant or dating partner of the respondent, nor are seeking the protective order on behalf of a child. Though ambiguity exists in this part of the statute about the proper definition of a "child," the Utah Code resolves this ambiguity under Section 78B-7-2, "Child Protective Orders." In that section, the term "child" is not expressly defined, but the section does adopt the definition of "child" as provided in Section 80-1-102, which states, "'Child' means an individual who is under 18 years old." U.C.A. 80-1-102(7). Thus, an individual seeking a protective order on behalf of a child may look to that Section instead of Section 78B-7-503.

Moreover, an individual seeking a protective order on behalf of a child victim of sexual violence or sexual abuse may do so pursuant to 78B-7-803, which adopts the same definition of "child" from Section 80-1-102. This appears to be an attempt by the legislature to broaden the ability of child victims of sexual violence or abuse to seek protective orders under both Section 78B-7-202 and Section 78B-7-803, while restricting the availability of sexual violence protective orders under Section 78B-7-503 to people who are older than 18 and are neither a cohabitant (which includes individuals 16 years of age and older) or a dating partner (which includes individuals 18 years of age and older). Therefore, for purposes of determining the age of a “child” under the statute, the Courts should not grant protective orders under Section 78B-7-503 to petitioners seeking such orders on behalf of an individual younger than 18 years of age.

The mission of the Utah judiciary is to provide the people an open, fair, efficient, and independent system for the advancement of justice under the law.

This interpretation leaves no room for someone under 18 to obtain a civil protective order for themselves when they have been sexually abused by their parent, stepparent, guardian, or custodian. The chart below explains by listing all the possible civil protective orders and listing their relevant qualifying criteria.

Type of order	Statutory authority	Relevant qualifying criteria
Child protective order	Title 78B, Chapter 7, Part 2	78B-7-202(1) allows any interested person to file a petition for a protective order, but requires either imminent danger of abuse (by anyone) or prior abuse, but only by an individual who is not the child’s parent, stepparent, guardian, or custodian.
Dating violence	Title 78B, Chapter 7, Part 4	78B-7-403(1) requires there to be abuse or dating violence by a “dating partner,” which is defined in Utah Code 78B-7-102(11) to mean “a social relationship of a romantic or intimate nature, or a relationship which has romance or intimacy as a goal by one or both parties, regardless of whether the relationship involves sexual intimacy.”
Sexual violence	Title 78B, Chapter 7, Part 5	78B-7-503 requires that an individual has been subjected to sexual violence and is neither a cohabitant nor dating partner of the respondent; the order may not be sought on behalf of a child.
Cohabitant	Title 78B, Chapter 7, Part 6	78B-7-602 limits this order to a cohabitant. “Cohabitant” is defined in Utah Code 78B-7-102(5) to include an individual who is 16 years old or older who has some other relationship with the other party. The definition does not include, among other things, the relationship of a natural parent, adoptive parent, or step-parent to a minor.

The legislative history of the bill that provides for Sexual Violence Protective Orders, HB 100 of the 2019 legislative session, provides some insight into this question. The bill was discussed in several committee meetings. At the House Judiciary Committee meeting on February 8, 2019, Representative Snow explained that the bill was meant to close a gap in the availability of protective orders. Stewart Ralphs raised concerns at the meeting about filing a request on behalf of the minor child of the respondent because those can be handled with either a cohabitant protective order or a child protective order, but he noted that instances of sexual violence that do not involve the minor child of the respondent would be appropriate for a sexual violence protective order. At the House Judiciary Committee meeting on February 12, 2019, Stewart Ralphs suggested to the committee that child protective orders should cover instances involving children. At the House Judiciary Committee meeting of February 15, 2019, Representative Snow said that language in the bill specifically excludes domestic cases involving a minor child and said that a minor child would be expected to proceed under a child protective order. At the Senate Judiciary, Law Enforcement, and Criminal Justice Committee meeting of March 6, 2019, Representative Snow made clear that the intent of the bill was to close a gap and make protective orders available to people who otherwise had no recourse. Representative Snow also made clear that the intent was to make this process available civilly, to not require a victim to wait for a prosecutor to investigate the case and open a criminal protective order.

Although there appears to be gap under general counsel's interpretation involving a minor seeking protection from sexual abuse by their parent, stepparent, guardian, or custodian, this issue came up for the Legal Aid Society in a different context. In that case, a minor sought a sexual violence protective order against someone who attempted to rape her. It is not clear, but it appears in that case, the minor did not want to ask her parents for help in seeking a child protective order. Although our child protective order forms do not say so explicitly, they suggest that a minor cannot seek a child protective order for themselves. Paragraph one of the Verified Petition for Ex Parte Child Protective Order says "Petitioner is seeking a protective order on behalf of the following children." Other questions throughout the petition discuss children in a similar manner, creating the suggestion that a minor cannot request protection for themselves. However, Utah Code 78B-7-202 allows "any interested person" to file for a child protective order, which arguably means a child could seek protection for themselves.

The Forms Committee can sidestep these issues by making the language in the Sexual Violence Protective Order forms adhere to the language in the statute and considering future revisions to the child protective order forms.

Commented [NP1]: CJA 14-802 says only persons who are active licensed Bar members may engage in the practice of law, which includes representing the interests of another person. Aside from a DBA, most businesses and organizations will have to be represented by counsel. Nevertheless, I decided to keep this and added space to clarify this in paragraph 1.

You all might consider whether to ask the Supreme Court to add an exception to the definition of the practice of law to 14-802 for the limited purposes of seeking a Workplace Violence Protective Order

Commented [NP2]: CJA 15-701(q) (which lists the types of actions in which LPPs are allowed to practice) is specific to cohabitant abuse and civil stalking injunctions. Workplace violence protective orders are thus excluded from the scope of LPP practice

2. The business or organization:

Name of business or organization is an employer.

3. The petitioner is either the sole proprietor or are authorized to seek this Workplace Violence Protective Order on behalf of the business or organization.

has committed workplace violence. The workplace violence was against (choose all that apply):

☐ the business or organization.

☐ The following employees of the business or organization: (This can include you)

Name (first and last name)

They were performing their duties as an employee when the workplace violence happened.

5. Respondent was served notice of their opportunity to be heard.

Commented [KT2]: I did not match this to what the Temporary PO says as this language seemed correct in this instance.

The court orders:

You, the respondent, must obey all orders marked below.

If you don't obey these orders, it is a criminal Class A Misdemeanor. You could serve up to 364 days in jail and receive a fine if you don't obey or violate these orders. Another violation can result in more punishment.

- serving documents you file in court on the employer or employee. Service may not be in-person under any circumstances, but must otherwise be according to the Rules of Civil Procedure. It must also be civil and not threatening.

Notices to you, the respondent:

You will not violate the protective order by:

- engaging in constitutionally protected exercise of free speech, including non-threatening speech and speech involving labor disputes concerning organized labor; or
- engaging in an activity that is part of a labor dispute. (Utah Code 78B-7-1109)

This protective order does not modify the duty of an employer to provide a safe workplace for the employees of the employer.

You may become subject to federal law because this protective order was issued against you. This would mean that it would be a crime for you to possess, transport, ship or receive any firearm or ammunition, including a hunting weapon.

"The respondent was afforded both notice and opportunity to be heard in the hearing that gave rise to this order. Pursuant to the Violence Against Women Act of 1994, P.L. 103-322, 108 Stat. 1796, 18 U.S.C.
