MINUTES
Advisory Committee on Model Civil Jury Instructions
April 10, 2023
4:00 p.m.

Present: Judge Kent Holmberg, Judge Keith A. Kelly, Lauren A. Shurman, Alyson McAllister, William Eggington, Ruth A. Shapiro, Douglas G. Mortensen, Mark Morris, Adam D. Wentz, Samantha Slark, Jace Willard (staff).

Also present: Adam Pace, Robert Cummings, ~~Samantha Slark~~Robert Fuller

Excused: Ricky Shelton

1. Welcome.

Alyson McAllister welcomed the Committee.

2. Approval of Minutes.

January and February, 2023 meeting minutes approved.

3. CV920 Easement Defined.

- Adam Pace joined the meeting to discuss the proposed instruction.
- The Committee made various edits to simplify and improve clarity.
- Added Tschaggeny v. Union Pac. Land Resources Corp., 555 P.2d 277 (Utah 1976) and Valcarce v. Fitzgerald, 961 P.2d 305, 311 (Utah 1998) as a reference citations to the instruction.
- Committee changed easement by prescription instructions numbering system.

4. CV930 Easement by Necessity. Introduction.

- Robert Cummings joined the meeting to discuss the proposed instruction.
- Committee reviewed the instruction as drafted and made no changes.

5. CV931 Easement by Necessity. Elements of a claim for access to landlocked property.

- Removed Abraham & Assoc. Trust v. Park, 2012 UT App 173, 282 P.3d 1027, 1031 as a referenced citation.

6. CV940 and CV941. New easement by implication instructions.

- Committee created new "Introduction" and "Elements" instructions for ~~each of the various~~ easement ~~instructions~~by implication.
- Robert Fuller's group to consider (1) modifying CV940 "Introduction" draft to include fact summary statement similar to what is in the CV930 "Introduction" draft, and (2) the need for and potential form of a separate instruction defining "continuous" as used in element 4 of CV941 "Elements" draft.

7. CV632 Threshold

- Committee discussed whether the note providing examples of permanent injury should be included or not. Will address next time.
- Discussed whether the word "threshold" would be easily understood by jurors. Replaced it with "minimum injury requirements."
- Committee agreed to circle back at the beginning of next month's meeting.

8. Adjournment.

The meeting concluded at 6:03 PM.

TAB 2

CV632 Threshold. Minimum?
[Name of defendant] claims that [name of plaintiff] has not met the minimum ~~threshold~~ injury requirements and therefore cannot recover non-economic damages.

In order to ~~A person may~~ recover non-economic damages resulting from an automobile accident [name of Plaintiff] must prove~~only if~~ [he/she] has suffered one of the following:

[(1) death.] or

[(2) dismemberment.] or

[(3) permanent disability or permanent impairment based on objective findings.] or

[(~~2~~4) permanent disfigurement.] or

[(5) a bone fracture.] or

[(~~3~~6) reasonable and necessary medical expenses in excess of $3,000.]

Committee Notes
~~Neither~~ Both the statute ~~nor~~ and case law ~~has~~ have provided ~~clear boundaries~~examples and ~~on the~~ definitions ~~of~~ for disability and impairment. For example, a herniated disc and permanent scar tissue restricting range of motion have both been held to constitute permanent injury.

Here is the case law and statutory law that I used to update the instruction:

First, it relied on one of our earlier cases to conclude that a disability or impairment is "permanent" "whenever it is founded upon conditions which render it reasonably certain that it will continue throughout the life of the person suffering from it."[14] Then it interpreted the term "disability" to mean "the inability to work" and the term "impairment" to mean "the loss of bodily function."[15] Finally, the court interpreted the phrase "objective finding."[16]
The court of appeals interpreted the phrase "objective findings" in two steps. First, it cited Black's Law Dictionary, which defines "objective" as "[o]f, relating to, or based on externally verifiable phenomena, as opposed to an individual's perceptions, feelings, or intentions."[17] And second, it cited one of its previous cases, in which it held that a plaintiff had failed to provide "objective findings" of a permanent injury where the plaintiff did not support his claim "with something more than his say so."[18] After considering these sources, the court concluded that, to be considered "objective," "a finding need only be demonstrated through evidence other than the plaintiff's own subjective testimony."[19]

Pinney v. Carrera, 2020 UT 43, ¶¶ 19-20, 469 P.3d 970, 977

¶24 The statute imposes a burden on the plaintiff to prove that one of the circumstances enumerated in the statute exists.[2]

a permanent herniated disc in her back. And he specifically testified that the herniated disc constituted "a permanent injury." He also testified that scar tissue, stemming from injuries sustained in the crash, inhibited Ms. Pinney's range of motion, and that treatment failed to restore her range of motion back to "100 percent." He further testified that "the scar tissue is permanent."

Pinney v. Carrera, 2020 UT 43, ¶ 28, 469 P.3d 970, 979

(1)(a) A person who has or is required to have direct benefit coverage under a policy which includes personal injury protection may not maintain a cause of action for general damages arising out of personal injuries alleged to have been caused by an automobile accident, except where the person has sustained one or more of the following:
(i) death;
(ii) dismemberment;
(iii) permanent disability or permanent impairment based upon objective findings;
(iv) permanent disfigurement;
(v) a bone fracture; or
(vi) medical expenses to a person in excess of $3,000.

Utah Code Ann. § 31A-22-309 (West)

CV 632A – Threshold - Definitions

A "permanent disability" is an inability to work that is reasonably certain to continue throughout the life of the person suffering from it.

A "permanent impairment" is the loss of a bodily function that is reasonably certain to continue throughout the life of the person suffering from it.

A finding that [plaintiff] is permanently disabled or permanently impaired must be demonstrated by externally verifiable evidence, which means something other than [plaintiff's] own testimony. Testimony of an expert or [plaintiff's] treating physician are examples of externally verifiable evidence.

A "permanent disfigurement" is a disfigurement that is reasonably certain to continue throughout the life of the person suffering from it.

Committee Notes
Unlike disability and impairment, what is meant by "disfigurement" under this statute does not appear to have been defined so this definition just focusses on the "permanent" aspect. (In fact, the Supreme court specifically declined to reach the issue of disfigurement in Sheppard v. Geneva Rock, 2021 UT 31, n. 8 because it resolved the case on other grounds.) Only provide the jury with these definitions if applicable to the threshold or thresholds the plaintiff claims to meet.

TAB 3

CV920 Easement Defined.

An easement is a right to use or control land owned by another person for a specific limited purpose (such as to cross it for access [or insert other example]). An easement prohibits the landowner from interfering with the uses authorized by the easement.

[An express easement is an easement that the landowner grants to someone else in writing, such as in a contract or a deed.]

Committee Notes
The parties may include in the parenthetical a description of additional or other particular uses more specific to the facts of the case. Depending on the easement at issue, the easement may include an area above or below the surface of the land.

If there are additional types of easements, the jury may be instructed according to the particular easement.

CV921 Prescriptive Easement. Introduction.

A prescriptive easement is a legal right to continue to use property of another based on longstanding use.

References
Valcarce v. Fitzgerald, 961 P.2d 305, 311 (Utah 1998) (prescriptive easement).

CV921 Prescriptive Easement. Elements of a claim.

[Plaintiff] claims a prescriptive easement to continue to use [Defendant's] property in the following manner: [describe the particular use]. To establish this prescriptive easement, [Plaintiff] must prove by clear and convincing evidence each of the following elements:

1. That [Plaintiff] has been using [Defendant's] property for [describe the particular use];

2. That [Plaintiff's] use of [Defendant's] property in this manner was open and notorious;

3. That [Plaintiff's] use of [Defendant's] property in this manner was adverse; and

4. That [Plaintiff] continuously used [Defendant's] property in this manner for at least 20 years.

If you find that [Plaintiff] has proved each of these elements by clear and convincing evidence, then [Plaintiff] is entitled to a prescriptive easement to continue using [Defendant's] property for [describe the particular use].

CV922 Prescriptive Easement. "Open and Notorious" Defined.

[Plaintiff's] use of [Defendant's] property was "open and notorious" if [Defendant] knew about the use, or if [Defendant] could have learned about the use through the exercise of reasonable diligence.

CV923 Prescriptive Easement. "Adverse" Defined.
[Plaintiff's] use of [Defendant's] property was "adverse" if [Plaintiff] did not obtain permission for the use.

If you find [Plaintiff's] open and notorious use of [Defendant's] property continued for a period of twenty years, then you must presume that the use was adverse unless [Defendant] proves that [Defendant] [or a previous owner of [Defendant's] property] gave permission to [Plaintiff] for the use when it first began.

CV924 Prescriptive Easement. "Continuous" Defined.

[Plaintiff's] use of [Defendant's] property was continuous if [Plaintiff] used [Defendant's] property as often as required by the nature of the use and [Plaintiff's] needs, for an uninterrupted period of at least twenty years.

A prescriptive use is interrupted where, sometime during the twenty-year period: (1) [Plaintiff] stops using [Defendant's] property; (2) [Defendant] [or a previous owner of [Defendant's] property] prevents [Plaintiff] from using the property; or (3) [Plaintiff] accepts permission from [Defendant] [or a previous owner of [Defendant's] property] to continue using the property.

CV930 Easement by Necessity. Introduction.

An easement by necessity arises when there is a transfer of property from one owner to another that results in a tract of land becoming landlocked.

[Plaintiff] and [Defendant] are adjoining landowners. [Plaintiff] asserts that because [his/her/its] property is completely landlocked, [he/she/it] should be granted an "easement by necessity" across [Defendant's] property so that [Plaintiff] can get to or from [his/her/its] property from the [public highway]. [Defendant] asserts that [Plaintiff] has no right to enter or use [Defendant's] property to access [Plaintiff's] property.

CV931 Easement by Necessity. Elements of a claim for access to landlocked property.

To succeed on this claim, [Plaintiff] must prove by clear and convincing evidence each of the following elements:

(1) All of the property was once owned by a single person who then divided the land and transferred away one tract of land, creating a landlocked property; and

(2) That the easement is reasonably necessary to the enjoyment of the landlocked property.

Committee Notes
This instruction applies to cases based solely upon a claim of a way of necessity. Other easement claims will require proof of additional elements. Tschaggeny v. Union Pac. Land Res. Corp., 555 P.2d 277, 280 (Utah 1976).

CV940. Easement by Implication. Introduction.
An easement by implication is an easement that can arise when a landowner divides property into two or more pieces (i.e., Parcel A and Parcel B) and transfers Parcel B away. The transfer of Parcel B to the new owner may include by implication all those apparent or visible easements over Parcel A which were used by the original landowner for the benefit of Parcel B before it was transferred to the new owner.

References
Tschaggeny v. Union Pac. Land Resources Corp., 555 P.2d 277, 280 (Utah 1976).

CV941. Easement by Implication. Elements.
To succeed on this claim, [Plaintiff] must prove by clear and convincing evidence each of the following elements:

(1) All of the property was once owned by a single person who then divided the land and transferred away one tract of land;

(2) At the time the property was divided, the use giving rise to the easement across the [retained/transferred] parcel for the benefit of the [transferred/retained] parcel was apparent, obvious, and visible;

(3) The easement is reasonably necessary to the enjoyment of the [transferred/retained] property; and

(4) The use giving rise to the easement was continuous rather than sporadic.

Committee Note
The Committee uses the terms "transferred" and "retained" in place of "dominant" and "servient." In most cases, the easement would be across the retained parcel for the benefit of the transferred parcel, but it is conceivable that there are circumstances when the reverse could be true. Thus, those terms are placed in brackets.

Separate instruction for meaning of "continuous" in element 4?

TAB 4

Chris Hogle (at Holland & Hart) questions why the Committee is drafting jury instructions for a prescriptive easement, which is an equitable claim for which there is no right to a jury trial. He submitted a trial court decision so holding.

And (although the draft instructions have not yet been published on the Committee website and public comments have not yet been invited) he submits certain comments to the Committee's draft instructions (previously CV951 and CV953; now CV921 and CV923). With mild edits by Lauren Shurman to add clarity, his comments are as follows:

Draft CV951 and CV953 leave out the "claim of right" requirement. CV951 cites two cases—Judd v. Bowen, 2017 UT App 56, ¶ 10, 397 P.3d 686, and Valcarce v. Fitzgerald, 961 P.2d 305, 311 (Utah 1998)—but both include the "claim of right" requirement as separate from the use, open-and-notorious, adverse, and continuous-for-20-years elements:

> To attain legal recognition of a prescriptive easement in Utah, the claimant must prove by clear and convincing evidence that the claimant's "use of another's land was open, continuous, and adverse under a claim of right for aperiod of twenty years."

Judd, 2017 UT App 56, ¶ 10 (emphasis added) (quoting Orton v. Carter, 970 P.2d 1254, 1258 (Utah 1998)).

> A party claiming a prescriptive easement must prove that his use of another's land was open, continuous, and adverse under a claim of right for a period of twenty years.

Valcarce, 961 P.2d at 311.

In Judd v. Bowen, 2018 UT 47, ¶ 12, 428 P.3d 1082, the Supreme Court held that the Court of Appeals' statement of the elements in Judd v. Bowen, 2017 UT App 56 ¶ 10 (including the "claim of right" element) was supported by "well-established caselaw from both this court and the court of appeals identifying the same legal standard."

That portion of the Supreme Court's Judd decision was cited in the most recent Utah Supreme Court case that squarely addresses a prescriptive easement claim:

> In Utah, a prescriptive easement is established where the "use of another's land was open, continuous, and adverse under a claim of right for a period of twenty years."

Harrison v. SPAH Family Ltd., 2020 UT 22, ¶ 12, 466 P.3d 107 (emphasis added) (quoting Judd, 2018 UT 47, ¶ 12).

Likewise, CV953 omits the "claim of right" condition to the presumption of adversity:

> If you find [Plaintiff's] open and notorious use of [Defendant's] property continued for a period of twenty years, then you must presume that the use was adverse unless [Defendant] proves that [Defendant] [or a previous owner of[Defendant's] property] gave permission to [Plaintiff] for the use when it first began.

It cites Harrison and Valcarce, but those cases hold that the presumption is triggered, not merely with open and notorious use for 20 years, but with such use "under a claim of right":

> Where a prescriptive user "has shown an open and continuous use of the land under claim of right for the twenty-year prescriptive period, the use will be presumed to have been adverse."

Harrison, 2020 UT 22, ¶ 51 (emphasis added).

> However, once a claimant has shown an open and continuous use of the land under claim of right for the twenty-year prescriptive period, the use will be presumed to have been adverse.

Valcarce, 961 P.2d at 311 (emphasis added); see also Van Denburgh v. Sweeney Land Co., 2013 UT App 265, ¶ 3, 315 P.3d 1058 ("[O]nce a claimant has shown an open and continuous use of the land under claim of right for the twenty-yearprescriptive period, the use will be presumed to have been adverse." (Emphasis added)).

The draft also cites Zollinger (and Jacob v. Bate, 2015 UT App 206, ¶¶ 18-19, 358 P.3d 346, 353, which was based on Zollinger) which could be read to support the draft:

> That is, where a claimant has shown an open and continuous use of the land for the prescriptive period (20 years in Utah) the use will be presumed to have been against the owner. . . .

Zollinger, however, is a 1946 decision that predates the Supreme Court's more recent pronouncements of the presumption, including in the Supreme Court's 2020 Harrison decision. Also, Zollinger was cited in Valcarce immediately after the Valcarce Court's articulation of the presumption's elements, suggesting that the Valcarce Court interpreted Zollinger to be consistent with the rule that the presumption requires "an open and continuous use of the land under claim of right for the twenty-year prescriptive period." (Emphasis added.)

Suggested edits for CV951 and CV953:

CV951

[Plaintiff] claims a prescriptive easement to continue to use [Defendant's] property in the following manner: [describe the particular use]. To establish this prescriptive easement, [Plaintiff] must prove by clear and convincing evidence that for at least 20 years ~~each of the following elements~~:

1. ~~That~~ [Plaintiff] has been continuously using [Defendant's] property for [describe the particular use];
2. ~~That~~ [Plaintiff's] use of [Defendant's] property in this manner was open and notorious;
3. [Plaintiff's] use of [Defendant's] property was under a claim of right to use [Defendant's] property in this manner; and
~~3.~~ 4. ~~That~~ [Plaintiff's] use of [Defendant's] property in this manner was adverse; ~~and~~
~~4. That [Plaintiff] continuously used [Defendant's] property in this manner for at least 20 years~~.

If you find that [Plaintiff] has proved each of these elements by clear and convincing evidence, then [Plaintiff] is entitled to a prescriptive easement to continue using [Defendant's] property for [describe the particular use].

CV953

If [Plaintiff] has shown by clear and convincing evidence that ~~you find~~ [Plaintiff's] ~~open and notorious~~ use of [Defendant's] property was open and continuous ~~notorious use of [Defendant's] property~~ under a claim of right to use [Defendant's] property ~~continued~~ for a period of twenty years, then you must presume that the use was adverse unless [Defendant] proves that [Plaintiff's] use was not adverse for a period of twenty years. ~~[Defendant] [or a previous owner of [Defendant's]property] gave permission to [Plaintiff] for the use when it first began.~~

As is, the presumption instruction conflicts with Lunt v. Kitchens, 123 Utah 488, 260 P.2d 535, 537-38 (1953) ("In other words, the presumption of adversity will not arise under mere use by a licensee and knowledge of such use on the part of the licensor. The use cannot be adverse when it rests upon license or mere neighborly accommodation." (Citation omitted)).

The presumption instruction reads as if there is only one way for the landowner to rebut the presumption—by showing that the use was initially permissive. The case law does not so limit the landowner. It states that "the landowner may rebut this presumption by showing that 'the use was initially permissive.'" Harrison, 2020 UT 22, P 51 (quoting Valcarce, 961 P.2d at 311 (initial emphasis added). There's at least one other way for a landowner to rebut the presumption: "where the prescriptive user alters his or her mental state (so that the prescriptive user begins using the easement under the owner rather than against the owner). An alteration in a prescriptive user's mental state most often occurs where the prescriptive user accepts a landowner's permission to continue using the easement." Id. P 30.

The Committee may want to consider other instructions. For example, Utah caselaw provides:

“When a party’s use of property is permissive at its inception, the use cannot ripen into a prescriptive right unless there is a later distinct assertion of a right hostile to the owner, which is brought to the attention of the owner, and the use is continued for the full prescriptive period.” Green, 886 P.2d v. Stansfield, 886 P.2d 117, 121 (Utah Ct. App. 1994) (quoting Wiedman v. Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church, 610 P.2d 1149, 1152 (Mont. 1980)); Gashler v. Peay, Case No. 20040948-CA, 2006 Utah App. LEXIS 32, *3 (“An antagonistic or adverse use of a way cannot spring from a permissive use. . . . It cannot be adverse when it rests upon a license or mere neighborly accommodation.” (Quoting Jensen v. Gerrard, 85 Utah481, 39 P.2d 1070, 1073 (1935)).

“‘[T]he extent of a prescriptive easement is measured and limited by its historic use during the prescriptive period,’” which “means that the ‘purpose for which the easement was acquired’ limits both the extent of the easement right as well as the physical boundaries of the easement itself.” Judd, 2017 UT App 56, ¶ 58 (quoting Valcarce v. Fitzgerald, 961 P.2d 305, 312 (Utah 1998) (plurality opinion), and Whitesides v. Green, 44 P. 1032, 1033 (Utah 1896)); SRB Inv. Co. v. Spencer, 2020UT 23, 463 P.3d 654.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE THIRD JUDICIAL DISTRICT

IN AND FOR SALT LAKE COUNTY, STATE OF UTAH

ALTA ZB, LLC, Plaintiff / Counterclaim Defendant, vs. MARK LEVIN, and PAISLEY FERGUSON, LLC, Defendant / Counterclaimants.	MEMORANDUM DECISION AND ORDER Case No. 200901717 Honorable Robert P. Faust

The Court has before it the Motion to Strike Defendants'/Counterclaimants' Demand for Trial by Jury.

With this Motion, Plaintiff and Counterclaim Defendant, ALTA ZB, LLC ("Plaintiff") moves to strike Defendants'/ Counterclaimants' Demand for Trial by Jury. It is Plaintiff's position that there are no claims in this case that are appropriately tried to a jury and, therefore, this matter should be set for a bench trial.

Defendants and Counterclaimants Mark Levin and Paisley Ferguson, LLC ("Defendants") oppose the Motion arguing the primary issue in this case is the existence of a prescriptive easement, which is a legal question, and as such, Defendants have a right to a jury trial.

BACKGROUND

In the instant, Plaintiff asserts a single cause of action for a declaratory judgment that no prescriptive easement or any other property right for vehicle parking exists across any portion of its land. Complaint. ¶¶ 15-16. In their Counterclaim, Defendants contend that they own an easement over a portion of Plaintiff's property for parking. Answer, Counterclaim and Jury Demand ¶¶ 23-46. There are no claims for damages.

LEGAL STANDARD

Utah Rules of Civil Procedure 39(a)(2) provides that when a trial by jury has been demanded under Rule 38, "[t]he trial of all issues so demanded shall be by jury, unless . . . the court upon motion or of its own initiative finds that a right of trial by jury of some or all of those issues does not exist." The relevant question is whether the action is brought in equity – where there is not a right to a jury trial; or in law – where parties have a right to a jury trial. See Kenny v. Rich, 2008 UT App 209, ¶ 37, 186 P.3d 989, 1001 ("The constitutional right to a jury trial in civil cases extends only to cases that would have been cognizable at law at the time the constitution was adopted").

RULING

In support of their right to a jury trial, Defendants first cite to Valley Mortuary v. Fairbanks, 225 P.2d 739 (Utah 1950). Valley Mortuary, however, is a contract case in which the plaintiff sought both monetary damages and injunctive relief to remedy a breach of a non-compete clause in an agreement concerning the sale of a mortuary business. Id. at 225 P.2d at 741. The trial court declined to impanel a jury, and the Supreme Court reversed, holding that the defendant was entitled to a jury trial because the contract claim included a matter cognizable at law—the claim for damages—and the request for injunctive relief did not affect the right to a jury trial. Id. at 748-49.

In contrast, the above entitled matter does not involve any claim to damages, or any other issue cognizable at law. Thus, Valley Mortuary does not apply to this situation.

In Valley Mortuary, the Court cited to Norback v. Board of Directors of Church Extension Society, 37 P.2d 339 (Utah 1934), where the court held that a jury should have been empaneled in a prescriptive easement case because, "the instant case is an action at law." Id. at 37 P.2d at 517. Norback is, however, distinguishable as it included a claim for monetary damages. Id. at 37 P.2d at 340-41. Moreover, the Norback rationale was generally abrogated in Valley Mortuary. Indeed, in Valley Mortuary, the Court explained that the district court's refusal to impanel a jury was based on Norback, and that although Norback "is apparently correct in result," its rationale conflicted with the reasoning the Court adopted in Valley Mortuary. Id. at 225 P.2d at 750. Accordingly, after Valley Mortuary, while the ultimate result of Norback is consistent with Utah law, the analysis is not.

Additionally, in cases decided after Valley Mortuary and Norback, the Utah Supreme Court stated that an action, like the present case, in which one party seeks to establish a prescriptive easement over the land of another is "a proceeding in equity." Richins v. Struhs, 412 P.2d 314, 315 (Utah 1966). As in the instant, Richins involved a claim "to have an easement by prescription for joint use of [a] driveway declared in plaintiffs." Id. at 314-15. In Richins, the Court noted that, "this attempt to assert and establish an interest in land, the legal title to which is vested in another, is a proceeding in equity." Id. at 315 (emphasis added); see also Cache County Drainage Dist. v. Westover, 494 P.2d 944, 945-46 (Utah 1972) (in a case over whether a prescriptive easement existed, the Court characterized the action as "this equity case"); Pitts v. Roberts, 562 P.2d 231, 233 (Utah 1977) (same); Richards v. Pines Ranch, 559 P.2d 948, 949 (Utah 1977) (same); McBride v. McBride, 581 P.2d 996, 997 (Utah 1978) (same); Jensen v. Brown, 639 P.2d 150, 151 (Utah 1981) (same). The assertions in Richins, that quiet title actions involving claims for prescriptive easements are proceedings in equity, remains good law in Utah.

Finally, more recent Utah case law establishing the test to determine whether the right to a jury trial applies in a given case supersedes Norback, which was decided in 1934, decades prior to a constitutional right to jury trials in certain civil cases becoming first recognized in Utah in International Harvester Credit Corp. v. Pioneer Tractor & Implement, Inc., 626 P.2d 418 (Utah 1981). The test that Norback applied, that the case before it was "an action at law" because the case turned on questions of fact, has not been applied in Utah since at least 1986. Several decisions since then hold that there is no right to a jury trial, even in cases that turned on "basic facts to be established." E.g., Hyatt v. Hill, 714 P.2d 299 (Utah 1986) (paternity and child support proceedings); Jensen v. State Tax Comm'n, 835 P.2d 965 (Utah 1992) (tax deficiency proceedings); Hahn v. Hahn, 2018 UT App 135, 427 P.3d 1195 (domestic and divorce modification proceedings). Norback is incompatible with these subsequent decisions, as well as Valley Mortuary.

The test for whether there is a right to a jury trial in a civil case is whether the action would have been cognizable at law when the Utah constitution was adopted. Hyatt, 714 P.2d at 301; Jensen, 835 P.2d at 969. "Utah courts have 'made it clear that [the] constitutional right to a jury trial in civil cases extends only to cases that would have been cognizable at law at the time the constitution was adopted.'" Failor v. MegaDyne Med. Prods., 2009 UT App 179, ¶ 12, 213 P.3d 899 (quoting Zions v. First Nat'l Bank v. Rocky Mountain Irr., Inc., 795 P.2d 658, 661 (Utah 1990)); Kenny v. Rich, 2008 UT App 209, ¶ 37, 186 P.3d 989. "'In characterizing a cause of action, Utah courts look to the nature of the action and not the pleading labels chosen.'" Id. ¶ 13 (quoting Records v. Briggs, 887 P.2d 864, 868 (Utah Ct. App. 1994)). "'[I]t is the prerogative of the judge who actually tries the case to make the determination of whether an issue is one in equity or in law wherein the party can insist on a jury as a matter of right.'" Id. at ¶ 9 (quoting Kenny, 2008 UT App 209, ¶ 21).

According to the pleadings, the nature of this case is one of quiet title to ascertain whether, and to what extent, Defendants have a constructive or prescriptive easement over Plaintiff's property. At the time the Utah Constitution was adopted in 1895, such cases were considered by courts in equity, not at law. See e.g. Clawson v. Wallace, 52 P. 9 (Utah 1898), Dudley v. Facer, 32 P. 668 (Utah 1893), Richey v. Bues, 87 P. 903, 267-68 (Utah 1906). See also Baer v. Higson, 72 P. 180, 180 (Utah 1903) (quiet title actions are "in equity"); Palmer v. Palmer, 72 P. 3, 4 (Utah 1903) (same).

Further, in Wey v. Salt Lake City, 101 P. 381, 383 (Utah 1909), the Court described as "ancient" the "jurisdiction of courts in equity in respect of suits to quiet title and to determine adverse claims."

The aforementioned case law demonstrates that when the constitution was adopted, cases like the instant were resolved by courts in equity, not at law. Accordingly, Defendants have failed to show that they have a right to a jury trial in this case.

Finally, although, Defendants as an alternative ask the Court to impanel an advisory jury, the ground they advance does not withstand scrutiny. Rather, trial to the bench is appropriate and will save judicial resources. Defendants can identify no extraordinary circumstance that warrants an advisory jury, and the Court declines to impanel such.

Based upon the forgoing, Defendants' jury demand is stricken. This is an action in equity. It is now, and it would have been so at the time the constitution was adopted. In this case, there is no right to a jury trial.

Furthermore, there is no valid reason to expend the time and resources that an advisory jury would require, thus, Defendants' request in this regard is, respectfully, denied.

This Memorandum Decision and Order constitutes the Order regarding the matters addressed herein. No further order is required.
